Leningrad Again Linked by Rail With Red Capital

Russians Rolling Back Nazi Forces

By JAMES M. LONG

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 22. (AP)—The Russians are rolling back the German line from Leningrad through one fortified place after another, Moscow announced early today, after the Red army yesterday captured the rail junction of Mga, thirty miles southeast of the great northern city, and thus freed a roundabout rail line to Moscow.

The Red army was in full offensive tide south, southwest and southeast of Leningrad, killing thousands of Germans as it battered through defensive areas the Nazis had carefully fortified for two years.

Leningrad Fully Freed
A late dispatch from Moscow by Eddy Gilmore, Associated Press correspondent, said that the capture of Mga, announced last night in a special order of the day by Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin, had given Leningrad its first rail communication with Moscow and the rest of the Soviet Union in two years.

The capture was part of a new breakthrough on a thirty-mile front from the Narva river southeast to the town of Vinogolovo. By freeing this area the Russians obtained a roundabout railroad from Leningrad to Moscow via Volkhov, Volodga and Yaroslavl.

Germans Hold Railroad
Still occupied by the Germans, but under heavy pressure from advancing Russians, was a portion of the main Leningrad-Moscow railroad through Kolpino and Tosno south to Kalinin and the capital.

Mga, ten miles southeast of the Narva river and seventeen miles south of Schlesselburg, is fifteen miles east of the great Leningrad-Moscow trunk railway, long lost to the Russians but now once again within their grasp. Mga was at the top of a German salient reaching southeast of Leningrad to a few miles south of Kurishi.

From Mga three railroads branch out, one going east to Volkhov and then north to Murmansk, one south to Kurishi, and another short line going southwest to join the Moscow-Leningrad trunk line south of Kolpino.

Mga Important Junction
Stalin called Mga an important railway junction and "powerful stronghold of German defenses."

The Moscow communiqué, recorded by the Soviet monitor, added that fourteen more towns were taken in the Mga area, including the railroad station of Apraksin, about ten miles to the east on the railroad to Volkhov.

This gave the Russians a roundabout rail line to Moscow via Volkov, Volodga and Yaroslavl. The Germans apparently still hold a small portion of the line from Mga into Leningrad.

Southwest of Leningrad where other troops had snuffed off a German corridor to the sea Thursday, the communiqué announced that "our troops have completely liquidated and dispersed groups of routed German troops who had been entrenched in previous engagements."

In this area, southwest and south of Krasnoye Selo, another fourteen towns and hamlets were taken by the Russians.

West of Novgorod, less than 100 miles south of Leningrad, the Russians continued their offensive toward Estonia, capturing populated places and wiping out dispersed groups of Germans entrenched in the forests.

U. S. Subs Sink 12 Jap Ships

By HAMILTON W. FARON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—Hard-punching American submarines engaged in a continuing battle to ruin Japan's shipping, have sent twelve more of the enemy's cargo vessels plunging to the bottom of the Pacific.

The blow, another long step toward cutting off men and materials from the enemy's ocean bases, was announced today by the navy in a matter-of-fact communiqué which held only of the types of ships sunk. The twelve ran the total sunk by America's Pacific submarines to 408.

Hopkins Knows "Forger": Hints He Named Writer of Letter About Willkie to Federal Probers

By TOM REEDY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—Weak with illness, presidential adviser Harry Hopkins shambled into a grand jury room to reiterate today that his name was forged to the mystery letter about Wendell Willkie and he hinted that he named the man he believed forged it.

The 53-year-old Hopkins arose from a naval hospital bed to ask and receive permission to testify, with the jury for ten minutes, then returned to the hospital to convalesce from a long attack of influenza.

May Know Forger

"Obviously, I can't discuss what I told the grand jury," said Hopkins to reporters, but "this letter is a forgery. There is a forger in this picture. I think I know who the forger is."

The assumption was that Hopkins told the jury that, with details. Hopkins is the nominal prosecutor in the "letter mystery" which has added a bizarre, new chapter in the adventures of the thin man who is closer politically to President Roosevelt than perhaps any other person. He demanded the investigation which has turned up confusing twists, declarations and denials, hints of political intrigue and some frank expressions of bewilderment.

Sparks says he got the letter from Interior Secretary Ickes through Ickes's assistant, George M. Briggs, and that Frank Phillips, Oklahoma oil executive, once held it. Ickes denied knowledge of it, Briggs was suspended without pay and is in seclusion.

Tojo Says Japs Want Long War

Time Favors Them, Premier Asserts

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. (AP)—Japan

prefers along war, Premier Hideki Tojo told the Japanese diet today in his annual speech on general policy, and he called upon the legislature to expand the national labor service and impose higher taxes.

Tojo's address, corresponding to the annual message on the "state of the union" by American presidents, reopened the Diet after its long New Year's recess and was reported in detail by Tokyo broadcast records by United States government monitors.

According to the radio version, Tojo declared that "unrest" in the United States and "increasing exhaustion in Great Britain had given both countries 'a craving for a short war.'"

"The enemy is in a fit of impatience," he asserted, adding that the present Allied offensive in the Pacific was a "desperate" result of this desire for a shorter war.

On the other hand, he said, "if Japan is given time, her strategic position would become even stronger, war resources in the southern region would be converted into even more fighting power, the unity of the peoples of greater East Asia would become more strengthened than it is now, and the position of Japan would be beyond their (the Allies) power."

Russian-Polish Rift Unbroken

Efforts To Settle Controversy Fail

LONDON, Jan. 21. (AP)—Efforts to settle the Russian-Polish border dispute apparently were deadlocked tonight at least until Moscow answers overtures made by Washington.

The Poles, insisting the dispute was a matter for the whole United Nations, were waiting anxiously to see whether the Soviet government replied to the offer of mediation made by United States Secretary of State Hull.

It was generally believed that Prime Minister Churchill after conferring with Polish leaders yesterday may have communicated with Premier Stalin in an effort to bring the Russians and the Poles together.

The Poles steadfastly refuse to talk of a shake-up in their London coalition government to make it acceptable to Moscow.

The Soviet government has declined to deal directly with the London Polish government, with which it has severed relations.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. (AP)—Kicking and clawing, Mrs. Velva Dickinson, 50, a dealer in antique dolls, was arrested by FBI agents in a downtown bank today and charged with sending coded messages to South America.

She was held in $25,000 bail. The FBI said the woman formerly had Japanese connections and that she had concealed code messages in what appeared to be ordinary letters addressed to South America.

160 Jap Troops Slain by Allies

Loaded Barges Sunk In New Guinea Area

By OLEN CLEMENTS

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NEW GUINEA, Saturday, Jan. 22. (AP)—One hundred sixty German troops, apparently bent on reinforcing the besieged defenders of Madang, New Guinea, were killed when speedy P-T boats caught them in their barges sneaking down the coast Tuesday night. Allied headquarters announced today.

The American craft surprised the troop-laden enemy barges off Cape Croisilles, less than twenty-five miles north of Madang and sprayed them with rapid-fire guns. All of the barges were sunk and all the Japanese killed or drowned.

Japs in New Uniforms
Gen. Douglas MacArthur's spokesman said the enemy troops were well equipped and wore new uniforms, indicating they were replacements for the Madang area.

Repeated bombings in the last few days suggest Australian forces may be starting a new drive from their inland Ramu valley positions aimed at Madang defenses.

On Thursday, seventy tons of explosives were dropped by fighter-escorted Mitchell-medium bombers on the Japanese being driven northward by the Australians. The Aussies were last reported less than twenty-five miles from Bogadjim, one of the keys to Madang's outer defense ring.

Twenty Barges Sunk
On the same day Mitchell's struck Japanese positions north of Madang, dropping bombs on supply and gun locations and strafing small craft at Hansa bay. Twenty barges were sunk.

The Japanese use barges almost exclusively to evacuate or reinforce their troops.

Liberator heavy bombers twice ranged 600 miles north of Australia Wednesday to raid the Japanese seaplane base on Ambolna Island in the Dutch East Indies.

West Virginia Farm Sales Increasing

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 21. (AP)—There were more farm sales in West Virginia's Eastern Panhandle during December than in any corresponding month since World War I. Auctioneer W. Strong Lewis reported today, predicting even greater sales during January and February.

Church Robbed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—Thieves posing as oil company delivery men carried off nearly 600 gallons of fuel oil from an underground storage tank at the Lewis Memorial Methodist church, police revealed today.

The FBI said she operates an exclusive doll shop on Madison avenue and was considered an authority on dolls. It added that her shop attracted a wealthy clientele including members of the Hollywood motion picture colony.

The Federal Bureau said Mrs. Dickinson had been a member of the Japanese-America Society until 1937, and had handled brokerage accounts for Japanese residents in California's Imperial valley.

Conroy said she was well known to persons connected with the Japanese consulate and military attaches on the West coast prior to the war, and had been a frequent visitor to the Japan institute here.

Four Maryland Men Arrested in Theft of Whiskey

499 Cases Stolen, FBI Charge Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation announced tonight four Maryland men had been charged in Baltimore in the theft of 499 cases of rye whiskey from a truck of the Overnight Transportation company of Baltimore last December 6.

The whiskey had a ceiling-price value of $12,600.

The FBI identified the four men as Edward R. Linthicum, 42, of Baltimore; John Carroll Rood, 33, of Baltimore; dispatcher for the company; Henry Andrew (Andy) Oberfeld, 36, of Baltimore, an employee of the company until last October and a recent army inductee; and William Bedworth, 42, of Priestford road, near Churchville, Md., business agent for a freight drivers union in Baltimore.

John W. Vincent, special agent in charge of the Baltimore FBI office, said United States Commissioner James K. Cullen held each under $3,000 bail for action of the federal grand jury on charges of theft from an interstate shipment and conspiring to violate the Interstate Shipment act.

Vincent said the truck was taken from the local terminal of a transportation company by a man who said he had been assigned to take the truck loaded with whiskey to New York.

The truck was found in Baltimore two days later, he added, but the 499 cases of whiskey in it were gone.

Anti-Roosevelt Tax Bill Passes

Senate Refuses To Grant Request

By FRANCIS J. KELLY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—A $2,750,000,000 tax increase bill, criticized by President Roosevelt as unrealistic and yielding hardly a fifth of the treasury's goal, passed the Senate unanimously tonight and headed toward a conference with the House.

The Senate completed its work by adopting a series of amendments which liberalize somewhat, from the standpoint of industry, the operations of the war contracts renegotiation law, although not so much as the Finance committee once tentatively decided upon.

In modifying these previous proposals, the lawmakers drew the bill more in line with the recommendations of Mr. Roosevelt, who said in his recent budget message that which in his opinion would restrict if not destroy the effectiveness of the law under which the government recaptures war profits deemed excessive.

The Senate, however, flatly declined to heed the president's admonition to send him a tax bill yielding the full $10,500,000,000 demanded by the treasury.

The Finance committee estimated that its amendments added about $180,000,000 to the bill approved by the House, bringing total federal income to more than $43,500,000,000 a year.

Many New Taxes
Nearly half the extra revenue—$1,011,000,000—would be obtained from new and higher excise taxes on a long list of items, including liquor, cosmetics, furs, jewelry, bowling alleys, admission charges and transportation tickets. Illustrative of the sharp boosts was the rise in the liquor tax rate from $6 to $9 per 100-proof gallon.

The bill proposes to pick up $664,000,000 more from individual income tax payers, chiefly through repeal of the earned income credit and disallowance of deductions for federal excise taxes paid.

Corporations would be hit for another $502,700,000 in excess profits tax while postal increases, including a boost in the air mail rate from six to eight cents, would account for the remaining $96,900,000.

The victory tax on individuals was made a straight 3 per cent levy income over $624 a year, regardless of family status. The present rate is 5 per cent gross, with a system of credits which reduces the effective rate to 3.75 per cent for single persons, further reduced by one-tenth of one per cent for each dependent.

Prof. and Mrs. D. W. Hendrickson, stated that they learned of their son's death by telegram from the adjutant general's office in Washington.

Germans Building Wall near Rome

Forced Italian Labor at Work

By EDWARD KENNEDY

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, ALGIERS, Jan. 21. (AP)—Battalions of forced Italian labor are rushing to completion a powerful new "Adolf Hitler" defense line sixty-five miles below Rome, Nazi prisoners reported today, indicating that the enemy has scant hope of holding his present "Gustav" line much longer against the onslaught of American, British and French troops.

The British firmly held the town of Minturno, two miles northwest of the Garigliano river, after Allied planes and artillery smashed an incipient German counterattack on that west coast communications hub, and French forces north of Cassino captured the foot of Mt. Il Lago, a Nazi stronghold across the Rapido river from the village of Sant' Elia. The Gustav fortifications thus were being shredded fast.

Tough Going for Allies
Ever since their landing on the Salerno beaches in September, Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth army troops have been forced to batter their way through a succession of Nazi defense systems that extracted the last possible advantage from the rough Italian terrain. The name the enemy has bestowed upon his latest fortifications would indicate that he considered it the strongest of the lot.

According to German prisoners—some 300 of whom have been captured by the British since they captured the Garigliano offensive Monday night—the "Adolf Hitler" line extends from 1,700-foot Mt. Cairo, six miles northwest of Cassino, down across the Liri valley in the area of Pontecorvo to the Aurunci mountains near the coast. On an average, the line is about six miles nearer Rome than the enemy's present defenses.

Recapture Prevented
Allied headquarters announced today that British troops had seized Minturno after hard fighting, some twenty-four hours after the Germans reported they had abandoned the "totally destroyed" town. A German formation preparing an assault to regain the town was detected by Allied airmen and was torn to pieces by bombs and artillery shells.

Japanese Cruiser Sunk by British

Royal Navy Units Now in Pacific

LONDON, Jan. 21. (AP)—The sinking of a Japanese cruiser by a

British submarine in a daring attack off Malaya was announced today by the admiralty, indicating that certain royal naval units transferred from the Mediterranean after the surrender of the Italian fleet may now be in action in the Far East.

The admiralty announcement did not identify the submarine—first British naval craft disclosed to be operating in the southern waters of the Indian ocean in some time—but noted that it was commanded by Lt. Com. L. W. A. Bennington, whose exploits as skipper of the submarine porpoise in the Mediterranean contributed a stirring chapter to British naval history.

Beatty Destroyed Without Warning

Officer Describes Bombing by Germans

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—A

German plane came in so fast that only twenty shots could be fired from a rapid-fire anti-aircraft gun before the destroyer Beatty was bombed.

This description of the attack that sank the Beatty in the Mediterranean the night of November 6, 1942, was given today by D. E. Forsyth, radioman of Athens, Ala., who manned the anti-aircraft weapon.

"Forsyth trained on the plane as it came in from starboard and had just fired about twenty shots when there was a shuddering jar and he was flung against the gun, breaking his jaw," the navy said, in reporting his story. "What followed was a confused succession of blurred pictures to him and to many of the other men on board."

"The bomb had struck almost amidships, and it was pretty obvious that the destroyer could not last."

To Forsyth the whole action resolved itself into a sharply etched picture of the plane coming in and banking. The guns were firing, there was a terrific crack on the jaw, and dimly he remembered being put in the captain's gig and taken with other men over to another destroyer standing by."

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 22. (AP)—In Britain's biggest air show since the days of 1940-41 the German air force raided London and the Southwest coast last night and lost eight planes—the most shot down in an enemy night raid in ten months.

A number of casualties were reported in the London area, including a mother and two babies who were injured when a bomb wrecked the rear of a house directly opposite a well-filled surface shelter.

Persons trapped in the shelter were quickly extricated by rescue workers. The mother and her babies also were dragged from beneath the debris in their home.

The raid was the longest in weeks and shells bursting over London could be seen from twenty miles away.

A few of the planes, which came across the coast in waves, were believed to have penetrated London's anti-aircraft barrage which was the loudest and most spectacular heard in weeks.

Chicago Murder Case Unsolved

Mysterious Woman Hunted as Slayer

CHICAGO, Jan. 21. (AP)—A clue that may put detectives on the trail of the mysterious woman in black who is hunted as the slayer of Mrs. Frank Starr Williams gave a fresh fillip to the investigation today.

Police Captain Frank Reynolds reported he had learned that a woman whose appearance corresponded to the general description of the killer entered an automobile near the Drake hotel Wednesday night shortly after Mrs. Williams was shot, and drove off at high speed. He related that four of the seven numerals on the license plate were furnished to police who were sent to track the car and its driver.

At an inquest earlier, Stanley Cook, Chicago business man who was waiting for an elevator in the hotel near Mrs. Williams's apartment when she was attacked, testified that a short woman clad in a black coat, black hat and black skirt emerged from the victim's suite and brushed past him in the corridor. He related that she "appeared to be stuffing something into her purse."

Cook recalled that Mrs. Williams's daughter, Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, also appeared in the hall and screamed:

"Stop that woman. She's crazy. She shot my mother!"

Cook said he didn't know where the woman in black went, but the revolver used in the slaying was found on the service stairs, indicating she followed them down in her flight.

The only other witness at the inquest before it was continued to Feb. 8 was the victim's husband, an attaché of the State department in Washington. He was asked if he could provide any information, but he shook his head and replied, "No."

Investigators speculated that the slayer had a grudge against the diplomat's wife or was bent on burglary, but there were no developments to bear them out.

Assistant State's Attorney Joseph Pope acknowledged that no motive had been disclosed.

Foundry Strike Ends

SEATTLE, Jan. 21. (AP)—Striking foundry workers of Washington and Oregon voted three to one today to return to their jobs in approximately eighty plants. Neil V. Pardo, secretary of the AFL Molders and Foundry Workers' Union, said tonight.

One of the Nazi planes destroyed was hit as it flew over London and it plummeted to the earth spouting sparks and flames. Another was believed to have been shot down over the city.

Another enemy plane was shot in to the sea off the Southeast coast while another was destroyed shortly after it crossed the channel.

Heavy Bombers Renew Raids on Nazi Positions

Berlin Reported Under New Attack

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 22. (AP)—A mighty fleet of RAF heavy bombers thundered eastward last night—perhaps to hit still blazing Berlin for the second straight night—after an Allied armada of 1,000 planes hammered mystery targets on the French invasion coast.

By W. W. HERCHER

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 22. (AP)—Strong formations of Allied planes hammered mystery targets on the French invasion coast yesterday, shooting down nineteen German planes at a cost of eleven in an operation that followed the largest aerial attack ever made on Berlin.

Six of the eleven missing Allied planes were United States heavy bombers.

German long wave radio transmitters left the air last night, possibly indicating that the RAF again was attacking the German capital for the second successive night.

Hundreds of Planes Attack
Hundreds of American heavy and medium bombers and nearly all types of RAF planes participated in the daylight assault on the Pas-de-Calais, the portion of France closest to England.

Describing the enemy fighter opposition as generally weak over France, a joint communiqué issued by the British Air Ministry and the United States army credited United States Flying Fortresses and Liberators with destroying seven Nazi planes while escorting American fighters got an equal number. RAF, Dominion and Allied fighters accounted for an additional five enemy planes.

The Allied attacking force lost two light bombers and three fighters in addition to the six United States heavy bombers.

Germans Bomb London
Nazi planes struck back at London last night in the heaviest raid since October, setting off the thunder of Britain's powerful ring of anti-aircraft guns. At least eight German night raiders, including some attacking London, were shot down over England, it was learned authoritatively. Some Londoners were trapped amid ruins and the extent of the damage of the German raid was not immediately determined.

Raid Nazi Defenses
In a new attack cycle with reinforced strength, American heavy and medium bombers and nearly all types of RAF planes raked mysterious Nazi forward defenses during the day in the Pas-de-Calais area.

Perhaps 2,000 tons of bombs crashed down on the French coast targets. In its attack Thursday night the RAF hit Berlin with more than 2,300 long tons (2,576 United States tons).

A responsible informant in Stockholm said that eleven war factories in the German capital's east end were struck and the borough of Neukolln to the southeast was badly damaged. Many Berliners with whom travelers talked said the raid was the worst yet on the Reich's heart. They reported there were at least thirty huge fires at one time, eleven of which still were blazing furiously today.

"Play-by-Play" Report
In a combined announcement the British air ministry and the United States army gave an unusual play-by-play of the day's operations against the Pas-de-Calais area which now has been attacked on twenty-two of the past thirty-one days and which popularly is supposed to contain German rocket gun emplacements.

Merchant Ships Crash, One Burns
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31. (AP)—One of two merchant ships involved in a collision off the Delaware capes this evening caught fire and was abandoned by her crew an hour later, the fourth naval district announced tonight.

Some time later the navy said it had received no report of casualties.

Make the Most of Cereals

OATMEAL TRICKS: Serve it with dried fruits, preserves or marmalade.

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Food Editor

The abundance of cereals is one of the bright spots in the food picture, and every household menu-planner should make the most of it these winter days.

Energy-building cereal foods—breads, macaroni, noodles, rice, breakfast cereals, corn and corn products—are fairly reasonable in price, easily stored and varied enough to break meal monotony.

Packaged ready-to-serve cereals provide sturdy fare for the beginning of a busy day. And steaming hot breakfast foods are especially satisfactory on a frigid morning.

Whole-grain cereals, as well as whole-wheat bread are fine sources of vitamin B, iron and other body-building substances. White flour is now being "enriched" by the addition of vitamins. Ask your grocer for the enriched kind or carefully read the labels that come on cereal packages and bread wrappers.

any preferred meat sauce. If eggs are plentiful add two eggs, beaten, instead of the flour. The eggs will increase the nutritional value of the loaf.

To give a crusty topper to foods, mix together one cup ready-to-serve cereal with three tablespoons margarine or butter. Heat slowly until the fat has melted and blended with the cereal. Then sprinkle over the top of foods ready for the oven or place in a paper sack and add fish fillets, chops, fish or other foods to be coated. Shake the sack until the food is well covered and pan fry or broil as desired. To improve flavor add one fourth teaspoon salt and a speck of pepper to each half cup of cereal needed.

VEGETABLE MEAT SCRAPPLE calls for two cups cooked cornmeal mush. Mix one cup of cooked vegetables (carrots, peas, green beans) into the hot mush, season with one-half teaspoon each of salt, minced onion and celery and stir in one-half cup leftover cooked crumbled bacon or chopped cooked ham or sliced cooked sausages or franks. Pour the mixture into a mold and chill. Unmold and cook as any other scrapple.

OATMEAL COOKIES BETTINA are full of goodness. Put some into the lunch boxes this winter. And since these are moist spicy cookies I suggest that you keep a jarful on hand for kitchen raids. Cream one-half cup shortening with one-half cup each dark or light brown sugar and granulated sugar. Add four tablespoons molasses, one-fourth cup sour cream or buttermilk, one beaten egg, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon each nutmeg and cloves, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon vanilla, one cup chopped cooked prunes, one-fourth cup prune juice, one cup toasted oatmeal cereal (regular breakfast food heated in moderate oven until light brown in color), two and one-third cups flour, one teaspoon each of soda and baking powder. Chill dough for several hours or over night. Drop portions from tip of spoon on a greased baking sheet and bake twelve minutes in moderate oven. The dough will keep a week, and pan or round baking dish. Bake an hour and ten minutes in moderate oven. Unmold and serve hot with

On the hop to Dallas. He gave an imitation of a shudder. "I awoke to find her staring at me, positively staring, as if I were a crook—oh, she bears watching, that one!"

"How silly!" murmured the girl. She longed to say, "Pipe down." She began buttering a third sticky roll, feeling nauseated at the sight of it, but knowing she must do something with her hands.

"Mr. Blythe is the sort of man who would stand beside a painting in an art exhibit and think everyone was looking at him."

John and William Smith shouted with laughter. The victim growled, "I'll bet it's not original." He gave her that look, partly scornful, partly teasing, that she remembered from the plane trip. "If I had known she was such an insulting dame I'd never have given her my card."

"You gave her your card?" queried Bill Smith. "We, too." He shook his head sadly. "But she did not bother to use it."

"Nor did she mine," Richard Blythe also was appearing to be inconsolable. "I lost it in Dallas," Mallory said. "And did you lose ours, too?"

The girl faced John Smith. "No, I didn't. It is in my purse right now. This," she forewarned, "will amaze you. I also am at the Montecito."

The man's face grew happy. "How nice. But," he asked, with a frown, "how do you happen to be there? You said you were going to stay with friends."

Before Mallory could answer Blythe said for her, "She was with friends last night. And such friends." He closed his eyes in appreciation. "Of course I'm talking about the girl. Who is she, Mallory?"

"Manuelita? She is lovely." And wasn't that just the trouble. It kept her already tortured nerves in even more distress. "I'll say she's lovely. But Manuelita who?"

Yes, that's right. Manuelita who? Blythe's curiosity was matched by Mallory's.

John Smith saved her having to answer. "A Manuelita with enough charm to gain frenzied compliments from both sexes surely must be Manuelita Estrada. There could not be another such Manuelita even in this size city."

Mallory grinned feebly, wishing she had taken notice of the girl's last name the day of the interview, instead of letting it escape her as had all those difficult foreign names. In an attempt to avoid the conversation, she began to study the crowd in the restaurant. Men in sober business suits. Women in stunning dark clothes. Children, restrained and mannerly. A few tourists, incongruous in their resort clothes. A man sitting far across the room caught her eye. That is, the back of his head did. It was so perfectly shaped, the hair so dark and well-cut, that she thought it was Carlos. Then he turned a bit and she saw that it was not. But how she wished it were. Better still, how she wished he were sitting with her instead of Richard Blythe and the frightening brothers.

John was saying, "I'm surprised you don't know her." The girl realized they still were discussing Manuelita.

"I darn well intend to," retorted Richard Blythe.

William glanced at his wrist-watch then, without saying anything, turned his wrist so that his brother could see.

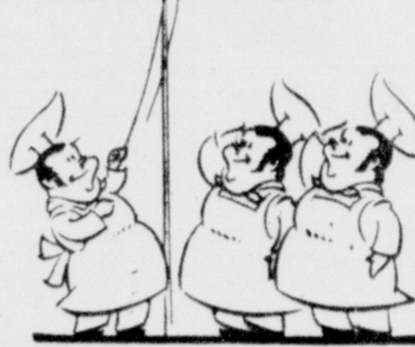

"Excuse us," John said, rising at the same time. "We have an appointment."

There was a short flurry of farewells, then Mallory was left alone with her host. "Well," he said

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

Mallory Baker knew now, just as she had the past Sunday when she visited the primitive market square in Tamazunchale, that John and William Smith were back of her. As her back congealed, she realized she had been expecting just this situation ever since she had been in Mexico City. But she had expected it in the region of the Montecito hotel, not in the company of Richard Blythe, the very man she had picked as her ally in her attack on the two brothers.

They, too, were perplexed, although now that Richard Blythe was standing, making introductions, their faces were changing. Their nonplussed expressions were giving way to a sort that fairly shouted, "Welcome, old friend."

"Hello, Miss Baker," cried John Smith. "What a pleasure to see you again."

"Well, well!" William's words were far from extraordinary, but they held the same exultant sound. "Hello," the girl responded weakly. To herself her voice resembled that of a strangled kitten.

"Do sit down, Dick," the other brother said. "Let's all sit down," invited Richard Blythe.

John Smith's acceptance was hearty. "Thanks, Dick, we'd much prefer it to sitting alone." He took a place beside Mallory, who felt her flesh crawl. The younger brother sat down opposite her and began to grin his usual cold grin, accompanied by his usual silence.

"We're having strawberries," she announced, feeling like a silly old maid. She should be full of cleverness and flip chatter, and all she could talk about was food. Still, she corrected herself immediately, wasn't such politeness preferable? It was in keeping with the dumb role she had planned to portray. "Imagine strawberries fresh from the vines in December," she gasped, and added a senseless giggle.

Blythe's face was a study. Apparently he was wondering whether she could be the same girl he had talked with on the plane. Her fluttering silliness baffled him. He frowned.

John Smith, on the contrary, smiled as if she had made an especially interesting remark. "Well, have strawberries, too—won't we, Billy?" Without waiting for an answer, he turned back to the girl. William gave the order.

"Look here, John," Richard Blythe suddenly inquired. "I want to know how you happen to be so well acquainted with my girl friend."

John's angular jaws lifted in the smile that Mallory remembered so well. "Your girl friend?" he banted. "I'd say she was my girl friend." He included his brother. "Ours, rather. We played hide-and-seek all down the highway."

"You are truthful at any rate," the singer thought through her worry. She felt as unsure, as trapped as a moth in a net.

"Did we?" she murmured. "I didn't see you except in Tamazunchale." She donned a vague look and began to explore the tray of heated sweet rolls, just placed on the table. "Tod Patrick—that is my concert manager—says I shouldn't be allowed to drive a car, that my mind is usually on some spiral embellishment in an aria, or a new gown, or some such. He says I never see the road or anything on it." She cast her dreamy look in three directions at the three listeners.

John Smith buttered an almond-topped roll. "I can understand how he feels about it. Bill and I, knowing you no longer than we had, were very worried about your trip on down. We were sorry we had to stay in Tamazunchale and could not accompany you."

The girl gave him a blank, violet-blue gaze. "Oh, but you could have after all. You see, I stayed in Tamazunchale myself. I felt dizzy—touch of fever, I think. I decided I'd better have someone with me for the rest of the trip, so I holed in and waited for Prism."

"Prism?" William Smith repeated. "My 200-pound-plus maid."

"Odd name," murmured the older brother.

"An odd person," said Mallory. "Half decorous servant and half cannibal."

"And now I'll ask one," she decided. "Isn't it funny I didn't see you in Tamazunchale? I looked for you."

John Smith's jaws hoisted in his glacial smile. He began to explain with the patience used for a child. "When I told you we had business in Tamazunchale that did not necessarily mean right there in the Plaza. Bill and I have to go far afield."

"I'll bet," thought the girl. "How far did you go this trip?" asked Richard Blythe. During the conversation between his guest and the brothers he had eaten busily. Now he held a lighted cigarette in his left hand and a replenished cup of chocolate in the right.

"All the way to Laredo," said Bill. "Nuevo Laredo. We did not go across the bridge this time."

Blythe's voice was light. "I didn't know you ever did."

"Sometimes," John said with curtness. He changed the subject. "Now that we've explained why we and Miss Baker are a happy family, suppose you explain your own friendship. Don't forget we were just as surprised about your being lucky enough to know her as you were about us."

"Same story. Fellow traveler."

Liquor Dealer Gets Chilly Reception

COLUMBIA, S. C.—(AP)—An ice and coal dealer sent an employee to a liquor store to buy a quart of spirits. The liquor store operator informed him that in order to buy the whiskey he would have to buy a quart of wine also.

A few days later, the liquor store operator called the coal dealer for a ton of coal.

"We'll be glad to fill your order," said the coal dealer, "but it will be necessary for you to buy a ton of ice."

No report was available on whether the sale was completed.

Fourth Term Gets Mid-West Support

Leaders Ask FDR To Be Candidate

By D. HAROLD OLIVER and JACK BELL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—Democratic leaders today presented a resolution to President Roosevelt favoring a fourth term nomination, but said they heard only a non-committal "oh" in reply.

The resolution was adopted by a group of mid-western Democrats and its presentation to the president capped a round of activities preliminary to the Democratic National committee meeting tomorrow to elect Robert E. Hannegan of St. Louis as the new party chairman to succeed Frank C. Walker, who is ready to resign to devote all his time to the postmaster generalship. The group is expected to decide to hold the national nominating convention in Chicago in July.

Tea at White House

A copy of the resolution was given Mr. Roosevelt at a reception at the White House at which the political leaders and their wives shook hands with him and Mrs. Roosevelt, had tea and sandwiches, and talked briefly in small groups and individually with the chief executive.

Minnesotans, on leaving the reception, reported they had received the president's blessing on a proposed merger of the Farmer-Labor and Democratic parties in their state, and Wisconsin members said Mr. Roosevelt told them he favored a similar coalition of Democrats and Progressives there.

13 States Represented

National committeemen and state chairmen from thirteen states attended the two-hour meeting of the Midwestern Democratic conference. Chairman James C. Quigley said the fourth term resolution was approved unanimously, and announced he will present it to the National committee tomorrow.

Story of Peace Move Exploded

ALGIERS, Jan. 21 (AP)—One of this war's most persistent rumors—the absurd tale of a visit by a German mission headed by Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop to North Africa to discuss peace terms—has been in circulation here for the past two months.

Investigation of the origin and development of this rumor disclosed the following facts:

About two months ago some captured German officers were brought to Algiers from Italy by plane and were seen at the airfield by a number of people.

Within a few hours a report that two plane loads of high German officers had arrived was going through Algiers.

At that time Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt were en route to the Cairo conference. Their trip was officially a secret, but was known to practically everyone in North Africa.

Air Raid Wardens Plan To Continue OCD Function

Action Is Taken after Discussion on Blackout Curtailment

Although alerts and blackouts in this area have been curtailed to not often than once in three months, and then only on Sunday, air raid wardens of the local civilian defense organization will continue to function, Herman L. Myers, chief air raid warden of Allegany county, announced last night following a meeting of air raid wardens in city hall.

Myers received a letter containing the War Department and Office of Civilian Defense announcement pertaining to the curtailment of blackouts and alerts, and pointed out that the announcement emphasized the action is intended to decrease interference with production of war materials and is possible, at this time, because most communities are believed to be sufficiently well organized to cope with such emergencies as can now be anticipated.

Training Recommended

The Office of Civilian Defense, however, recommended continuance of periodic training for local civilian defense personnel, but the training would not involve general public participation.

Action taken by the wardens last night followed the recommendation of the Office of Civilian Defense and was agreed upon after a discussion lasting nearly two hours.

The action provided that emergency alerts will be held by zones at the discretion of the chief air raid warden.

Signals Discussed

Before the meeting was opened to discussion, Myers asked for comments by representatives of the six zones in the city as to continuance of the air raid warden organization and sentiment appeared to be unanimously in favor of keeping the group together so that this section would not be caught napping in event of a surprise air raid.

In the course of the meeting there was considerable criticism of the present warning signals but Dr. Robert W. Work, director of civilian defense for Allegany county, pointed out that the signals in operation are nationwide as the result of a federal law, and added that there is little that can be done to alter them by the local organization.

Wolford Funeral Home Opposes Plans for New Bowling Alleys

The Wolford funeral home, located at 125 South Liberty street, has notified the mayor and city council that it opposes the proposal of the Kelso garage, 123 South Liberty street, to use the second floor of the garage building for bowling alleys and a dance floor.

John C. Wolford and Charles L. George said in a letter to the council, that the business of the Wolford firm would meet with "great hindrance", and asks the council not to issue the permit and request a hearing.

Two Births Reported

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hickerson, Westport, announce the birth of a son yesterday afternoon in Memorial hospital.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Connie Lavin, Washington, D. C., January 17 in Sibley hospital. Washington, Mrs. Lavin is the former Miss Marion Boydland, Cumberland.

Health Officials Conclude Four-Day Milk Seminar Here

Maj. M. M. Miller, of the United States Public Health Service, spoke on "Definitions, Grading, Rating Methods and Cost of Milk Control" at the closing session of the four-day milk seminar here yesterday.

Publicity on the ill-effect of raw milk shows that politicians "keep hands off" of Cumberland's health problems, J. Byron Dowling, local sanitarian declared in one of the closing addresses.

Dowling declared that health officials are striving to give Cumberland a healthful supply of milk and added that the mayor, city council and Allegany county commissioners do not interfere with health regulations.

One hundred eight persons attended the seminar here including twenty-seven student nurses. The attendance included twenty-three Maryland persons from outside Cumberland; fifteen from Virginia; eleven from West Virginia; four from Pennsylvania; three from Illinois; three from the Public Health Service and three from the District of Columbia.

At the closing session the Resolutions committee composed of D. K. Summers, of West Virginia; C. B. Neblett, Virginia and Tighman McCabe, Maryland, submitted a resolution, which was adopted, expressing appreciation to the city, state and Public Health Service, commercial concerns and others for courtesies shown the visitors.

Streamlining of Present Rationing System Becomes Effective Feb. 27

Ration Tokens for Making Change Will Become Valid on That Date

A streamlining of the present rationing system will go into effect February 27 when ration tokens become valid, OPA officials assert. One local bank yesterday received a supply of the red and blue plastic tokens which will be used in making change for ration stamps in Book 4.

The refinement of the rationing system includes the use of the tokens as change for blue and red stamps in Book 4 for all food products.

Major changes in the rationing system will be:

Major Changes Listed

1. All stamps in Book 4 will have a ten point value regardless of the value listed on the stamp.

2. Tokens, valued at one point, will be used for change only and will supplement but not replace ration stamps.

3. Expiration dates for all red and blue stamps will be lengthened. The system will offer several definite advantages to the consumer, Karl W. Radcliffe, chief clerk of War Price and Rationing Board, asserted.

Ration books will last longer than under the present system. It is estimated that Book 4 should last for two years when all points have a ten point value.

Meat stamps will be simplified by semi-monthly validity dates instead of the present weekly period. Red stamps will be valid for one month under the present system.

Stamps Valid Longer

While lengthening the validity period of stamps will not increase the amount of food an individual may secure, it will prevent last minute rushes when stamps are about to expire, Radcliffe said. Practically all persons will have used all available stamps before they expire, he added.

Two billion ration tokens have been ordered by the OPA. Allotments of tokens will be made to banks on the basis of estimates submitted by the banks.

Customers are urged to carry only what tokens are needed in making change, especially when the system is being placed into operation.

Stamps will be torn out of Book 4 horizontally instead of vertically as at present, OPA officials said.

Timber Land Owners Are Urged To Order Seedlings, Transplants

Timber land owners are advised to place their orders now for transplants or seedlings for either roadside planting or reforestation, William H. Johnson, district forester, announces.

Numerous requests have already been received, Johnson said, but it is a good idea for land owners to apply now for supplies from the nurseries of the state department of forests and parks. Both seedlings and transplants are available at the cost of production.

Johnson stated that transplants are recommended for heavy soils and poorer sites. Seedlings and transplants must be bought in units of not less than 1,000 and trees for roadside planting must be purchased in units of not less than ten.

Details concerning prices and varieties and order blanks may be obtained from the district forester's office at the court house.

Charles Smith, R.P.D. 4, Cumberland, was granted a license to operate a saw mill three miles east of Oldtown.

Powers Is Committed For Grand Jury Action

Howard Powers, 27, of 716 Sylvan avenue, charged with the theft of three high powered rifles and a ring, waived a preliminary hearing yesterday before Magistrate Frank A. Perdue, in trial magistrates court, and was committed to the county jail in default of $500 bond for action of the grand jury.

Powers, who received a medical discharge from the army recently, was accused of taking the rifles, valued at $75, and the ring, valued at $19 from the home of Lester Harvey, Valley road, last July 31.

Paul M. Fletcher, assistant state's attorney, preferred charges and read a sworn statement in which Powers admitted the theft, Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, stated yesterday.

Officials stated that Powers was formerly convicted on a larceny charge.

Nine City Registrars Take Oath of Office

Nine newly appointed registrars for the city of Cumberland have taken the oath of office before Robert Jackson, clerk of court, since their appointment Monday. All appointees must be sworn in before they may be eligible to handle registration of the city's voters prior to the coming election.

Those sworn in were: Bart J. Finan, Marie M. Dreyer, John H. Dwyer, May L. Birmingham, Bruce D. Smith, Milton C. Norris, Jacob E. Keller, Carl L. Leonard and Glen W. Sanner.

Kuhn Will Probated

Emma C. Kuhn named her sister, Bertha K. Dalley, sole beneficiary and executrix in her will which was entered for probate in orphans' court yesterday morning.

Ballots Will Be Mailed Members Of Local 1874

Elections Committee Will Begin Tabulation of Returns On January 30

Official ballots for the 1944 election of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, will be mailed over the weekend to the 8,000 odd eligible members of the union, Gilbert Lewis, chairman of the election committee, announced yesterday.

Ballots must be postmarked before midnight January 23 to be valid, Lewis said. The committee will begin to count the returns Sunday, January 30, and the results of the election should be available by February 1.

There will be no second mailing of ballots this year, Lewis stressed.

Five men are listed on the ballot as candidates for president. They are Playford Aldridge, Richard E. "Dick" Boyden; Michael "Mike" Broderick; John F. Patkin and Kenneth L. Tooley.

Candidates for vice president include William E. Meagher, Francis Pedenbrink, Earl Snyder and James "Iron Man" Stewart.

Only two candidates, Roy T. Craze and John G. Thomas are listed for secretary-treasurer and business manager. Craze, a registrant of Local Board No. 2, will begin army training within the next two weeks.

Those who are running for places on the five-man board of trustees are John H. Dermer, Richard Edmiston, Charles E. Jones, George H. Layman, Joseph W. Leasure, Dennis G. McCulley, Melvin M. McKendzie, Clair R. Mease, Perle Miller, Earl R. Nixon, Charles H. Smith, David Stevenson and Edwin Van Meter.

Named for the nominating committee are James E. Boyland, James E. Chappell, George H. Knotts and Alton Nave.

Walter R. Mahaney is unopposed as sergeant at arms.

Members may vote on a referendum regarding seniority rights in the spinning room.

Body of Retired Teacher Is Found

Medical Examiner Says John R. Deffinbaugh Died about Christmas

The body of John R. Deffinbaugh, 64-year-old retired school teacher and surveyor, was found in his home, near Oldtown, yesterday afternoon and Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy county medical examiner, said the man had been dead since about Christmas.

Mr. Deffinbaugh, who lived alone in a farm house, died of a heart attack, according to the medical examiner, suffered apparently as he was getting in bed.

Discovery of the body was made by a nephew who called at the home and later told authorities Mr. Deffinbaugh was last seen about the Christmas holidays.

No other homes are located near the Deffinbaugh home. Dr. Corson said. He added that the body was frozen inasmuch as there had been no heat in the house for some time. It was difficult, Dr. Corson explained, to place definitely the time of death.

A native of Town Creek, Mr. Deffinbaugh was a son of the late John and Margaret Crabtree Deffinbaugh. He was a bachelor and is survived only by six nephews and a niece.

The body is at Stein's funeral home.

The state's attorney's office and state police assisted in the investigation.

Governor Is Cool Toward Calling Special Session

Labor Conference Asks Repeal of Declaration of Intentions Law

Governor Herbert R. O'Connor, in a letter received yesterday by the Western Maryland Labor Unity Conference, expressed coolness toward calling an extraordinary session of the Maryland Legislature to repeal the Declaration of Intentions law.

The governor's action followed his receipt of a letter from the labor conference requesting a special session to "repeal, re-enact and clarify election laws."

The labor group specifically asked for the enactment of legislation to permit Maryland men and women in the armed forces to vote, the repeal of the Declaration of Intentions act and for a law to permit voters to call for the ballot of their choice in primary elections.

The repeal of the provision for property ownership for candidates in Cumberland was also requested. O'Connor, commenting on votes for servicemen said that "Maryland is following the sounder and more desirable course of requiring definite action by which the War and Navy departments will be authorized to handle balloting for the armed forces."

He said he would be more inclined to call the special session to repeal the Declaration of Intentions act "if a majority of the membership of the legislature indicated their desire to have this law repealed."

Physicians Honor Dr. Thomas Koon With Testimonial

Former Cumberland Mayor Is Lauded for Long Medical Service

A testimonial dinner in honor of Dr. Thomas W. Koon, recognizing his service of more than fifty years in the practice of medicine, featured the annual meeting of the Allegany-Garrett County Medical Association held last night at the Cumberland Country Club.

Dr. Koon was presented with a framed testimonial bearing the names of the members of the society. The presentation was made by Harvey H. Weiss, superintendent of Sinai hospital, Baltimore, and former superintendent of Memorial hospital here.

Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan spoke briefly, and at times humorously, in reminiscing of early local history and in praising the fight of Dr. Koon for progressive health measures here, not only as a physician but as mayor of Cumberland. References were made to his efforts in behalf of the erection of Memorial hospital and in the construction of Koon dam.

Dr. Charles R. Austrian, Baltimore, president of the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty, spoke on current discussions of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill, and pointed out that doctors are interested only in the betterment of medicinal care of the people.

No plan adopted for general welfare, he said, could serve different geographical locations.

The medical profession, Dr. Austrian added, is not opposed to health insurance but to forced health insurance. He declared that each person should have the privilege of choosing his own physician.

New officers of the society were presented. They are Dr. Charles C. Zimmerman, president; Dr. Linne H. Corson, vice president; Dr. Samuel M. Jacobson, secretary, and Dr. Clay E. Durrett, treasurer.

Dr. Zimmerman was toastmaster at the dinner and presided at the meeting.

Tells How Natives Greedily Take Scraps from American's Dishes

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the second in a series of articles written by Corp. Francis C. Rogers, former California newspaper reporter now serving with the American army in India.

"As this country passed by in a kaleidoscopic panorama of beauty and ugliness my first wonder was that there is a living soul", Corp. Rogers writes. "A tremendous portion of the population lives in the midst of expansive, malaria-ridden swamps and rice paddies, all dotted with grass and bamboo woven into two meager squares tripped together, about the size of an army puppet. Outside are crude fire pots of mud and clay, around which a family cooks and eats. The children are emaciated and naked. The parents are ill-fed and ragged. For what do these people live, I have asked myself over and over.

Bed Is Made of Bamboo

"I visualize an American family, and the tendency to gather comfortably in a nicely furnished room in the evenings. And I look back at a crude grass and mud lean-to, with no walls at the ends, with only enough room for a few pieces of bamboo which makes a bed, and I wonder what they are living for. Is it just to eat, sleep and breed and multiply—a futile attempt to replenish and maintain a nation so disease-ridden that the death rate is staggering.

"We ate in the open and the food seemed to stick in my throat. Large crowds gathered—women, children, men, from infants to senile, withered, palsy-afflicted gargoyles of humanity. I can still see them—the look in their eyes, and how greedily they took the few scraps from our dishes—how they rushed up to us as we walked to the garbage can as though to save a most precious thing in life. The dogs were sickening—running-mange where hair should be, nothing but bones with drawn up, painfully arched backs.

Deathly Silence Prevails

"And then: the dogs disappeared. There was a deathly silence about everything. Mute, drawn faces peeped at us, imploring eyes bored through us. The platforms were strewn with motionless, barely living creatures, their eyes fixed. The children, their bloated, empty stomachs stretched pathetically.

"My whole body quivered as a grotesque young girl of about 20 years, her face and form distorted, stood before me. Her lips were parched, her eyes imploring. In her arms she carried a naked baby, its tiny hind-quarters drooping over her thin arm like a hawk of limp cotton, the skin of its withered bones loosely covering its rickety bones like a small parcel in an oversized burlap bag.

"For the first time since I've come to India I was frightened—I truly paralyzed with fear. I could not move. I could not turn. This woman stood a few feet in front of me, her eyes fixed on mine, a burning, insistent stare. The files clung to the baby like they fix themselves to a slowly rotting corpse. The baby moved a little, omitted a slight hacking cry. Its skin rolled in loose layers as it slid from the woman's shoulder and started to suck an empty, sagging breast. Her eyes never left mine, and I was motionless. She never spoke.
